Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-21 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Gilby (6,239,871).

Gilby teaches of an optical analysis chamber comprising an optically transmissive elongated tubular body (112) having an interior and exterior surface wherein the interior surface of the tubular body is the exterior surface of the cell (116), wherein said interior surface wall defines an elongate separation chamber that is in direct contact with a sample material, said body wall having a window (100) having a substantially convex exterior surface wherein said window has a non uniform thickness (figure 2A) and wherein the longitudinal axis of the sample passageway is offset from the tubular body.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 9/22/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Firstly, applicant argues that "Gilby describes an optical apparatus that consists at least three separate parts, namely a hyper-hemisphere , a hemisphere and a cell or capillary.... These elements are put together to form the optical apparatus. The current invention, in contrast, related to a single optical analysis chamber. Examiner agrees with applicant; however the limitations in the claims do not clearly distinguish between Gilby and the current invention. Gilby clearly shows all the limitations of the present claims.

Secondly, applicant argues that "Gilby, unlike in the current invention, the sample material being separated is contained within the bore of the cell or capillary and thus not in contact with the interior surface of the tubular body (112). Examiner respectfully disagrees since the claims can be interpreted as the tubular body (112) having an interior and exterior surface wherein the interior surface of the body (112) is the same as the surface of the cell (116), which is in contact with the material and the exterior surface can be either interpreted as (104 or 100).
